Issue 61 of IRBA News is Now Available

Johannesburg / 19 April 2023

The latest issue of IRBA News is now accessible on our website. In this publication, we highlight and acknowledge the positive results we are starting to see from the collective efforts of all our stakeholders. In fact, there has been a clear sense of further enhancing our endeavours to work together to achieve our collective goals for the profession.

I want to thank everyone for their continued input, collaboration, suggestions and the constructive conversations that are helping to shape the future of our profession.

It is important that we continue to work together to create awareness about the value that a well organised and disciplined auditing profession brings to the financial markets and the economy of our country. After all, protecting the public interest is at the heart of all that we do and should continue to pursue.

The newsletter can be downloaded from the IRBA website.
